Explain your selected case study, describe the central problem, and recommend a practical solution.

Fictional Emberline Transit uses painted floor markers to help riders find quiet waiting zones. A small community team revises the colors after monthly accessibility walks.